HONGKONG, SEPTEMBER 5TH, 1873.

It is a matter of common remark that people will do in their collective capacity things with regard to which, as individuals, they would justly hesitate. The division of responsibility has a peculiar effect upon peoples' moral susceptibilities, and makes men of the most upright intentions parties to actions which, if they looked into them carefully, would cause them to shrink back in alarm. Governments, Boards, and Committees are thus notorious for doing things which no individual composing them would think of. An instance of this in Hongkoug has come before our notice in a variety of forms, and we think it right to call attention to the fact, as, unless some steps be taken · in the matter, there appears to be a possibility

It is unnecessary to specify more particularly the case to which we allude, than to say that it has arisen in connection with him a rancy black devil. He thereon arrested one of the public Companies, which has fallen into temporary difficulties from unforescen circumstances, and which, we hear from numerous sources, has refused to pay claims made by its own servants, and other liabilities of the like description. We are, confident that the gentlemen who have the immediate management of the affairs of the Company are not taking this course from any improper motives, or fromlack of a duesense of honour. Their position and respectability preclude any such view of the subject, and it appears that in some degree the course of action has been unavoidable; but still the fact remains that amounts which anyone of the Directors, as a private indivithan refuse, are allowed to remain unsettled, asked the price of a pair of trowsers, and be up in the matter. We had supposed that that to the serious inconvenience of men who can the present occasion, but the subject has a general bearing of scarcely less importance, that is, as it affects the credit and good name of Hongkong. It can hardly be believed that if, proper attention be called to the matter, it will be allowed to go on as at present. Something should surely be done. Liabiliregarded, if not strictly legally in all cases, at least as a matter of honour, as preference claims; and, therefore; there can be notingury worked to anyone by these amounts being paid. It cannot be believed that an important Company would allow such matters to remain ultimately unsettled, and it would. therefore, be a wise policy to make an effort credit of the Colony is also to some extent involved in the question, as it would certainly be something new that any serious difficulty should be experienced in obtaining their pay would be to carry matters further than would be the case in any other part of the world, and would be an action which all who desire to see the good name of the Colony sustained, would feel to be a subject of the deepest regret. No doubt, the apathy which has been manifested results in some degree from the affair being one of those which is considered not more the business of one man than of another; but the true view of the subject is that, as a matter of honour, it is the business of all concerned

EARTHQUAKE IN AMERICA. The Buffalo Commercial Advertiser gives the following account of the earthquake on the 6th of July :- "The first shock was felt about o'clock in the morning, and was comparatively light; the second, also lighter, about 7; and the third about 20 minutes after 9. The last was of much greater violence than either of the others, and probably the heaviest shock of an earthquake ever felt in this portion of the country. Many people who were sitting quietly at their Sunday breakfast, getting ready for church; or otherwise engaged, were suddenly startled by the trembling of their tenements and the shaking of household effects generally. cause quickly became apparent, and there was a general rushing to the doors and windows. each asking his or her neighbour if he or she felt the earthquake.' Towards six on credit, with allowance in weight. o'clock clouds began to gather from all sides of the horizon, and at 10 minutes past seven a storm of unprecedented violence broke. At the On London.time a number of lads were flying kites and playing cricket in a field belonging to the Can-non-street Mission School, on Bolton Moor. Rain had not begun to descend, and four boys, named William Emus, aged 14; Poter Lee, 12; and Alfred and Abel Bullough, aged respectively 16 and 11 years, were standing in a group On NEW YORK .leisurely watching the game, when they were all struck to the ground by the electric fluid. The lightning was extremely Hongkong Hotel Company's Shares-50 per vivid, and the claps of thunder so destening as to alarm even the stoutest hearts. At Daub- Indo-Chinese Sugar Company-87 per cent. bill, just on the boundary of the borough, a house chimney was struck, and the lightning passed out of the door, leaving uninjured a couple of lodgers, who were seated on the step. The chimney of the co-operative brick shed in Willows-lane, was also burled to the ground and the man who was inside was struck by the électric fluid, and would have fallen had be not been caught by another man. In several other parts of the fown great damage was done.

A heavy thunder storm broke over Huddersfield and neighbourhood about five o'clock on Wedmesday morning, accompained with very vivid lightning and heavy rain. The lightning struck a house about a male from the town, occupied by a man named Gibson, who was in bed with his wife, rendering the latter insensible for several minutes. It then melted the gas-pipe, and set the house on fire, but little damage was done. Shortly before six o'clock a violent thunderstorm, accompanied by rain, burst over Leeds. The lightning struck the house of Mr. Shackleton, corn factor, and the housemaid. Ann Naylor, was killed. Mr. T. Buck, a retired Bradford merchant, was also struck and killed. At Bradford a woman was struck, but no lives were lost.

At Richmond, Yorkshire, the storm raged with great violence until seven o'clock in the morning; in some parts of the town the paving | TO HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR, stones were ploughed up, and the sand lay so thick that men have been engaged lading it for To. A young man, named Clew, a farmer, living at Wood House, was struck by the lightning, and he became blinded for some time, but ultimately recovered, and his watch, which was in his trousers' pocket, was completely smashed.

At Liverpool the heat of the previous days had been excessive, and on Tuesday was most intense, the thermometer marking 124 degrees in the sun in the afternoon. Towards eveningthe western sky became clouded, and in a short space of time the town was enveloped by the - storm clouds, the thunder and lightning being almost appalling, and accompanied by torrents of rain which flooded cellars and streets in the lower portions of the town. The violence of the storm abated later on, but until midnight there were frequent flushes of lightning and peals of thunder. Several houses and buildings were injured.

At Gilmoss, near Liverpool, a barn on the farm of Mr. Wright, on the Croxteth estate, was struck and burnt out, though the roof was of slate. Fortunately there was no grain in store, and the horses were rescued without in-storm passed over Preston on Tuesday night from south west. From 8.30 until 9.30 the lightning was almost incessant, sheet and forked lightning appearing at the same instant. for stowage of cargo, &c. and the accompanying claps of thunder were terrific. Many of the flashes of forked light-- ning seemed to be composed of small rings of fire, and others had the appearance of zig-zag chains of stars. It was an awfully magnificent sight, the dread splendour of the electric fluid for about two hours, coming a sudden rise of ed at the Dock, or on application to the underseveral feet in the river Ribble, and the lowlying streets of the towns were temporarily flooded. A young woman walking on the banks of the river was blinded by the lightning for a short time. A man and two horses were instantaneously killed by a flash of lightning at a stable door in Hutton, near Preston; and in TOHN SKINKER, SAN FRANCISCO, Grunsargh, another neighbouring township, three men were struck dead, as they were returning from a hayfield in a cart. RECOLLECTIONS OF STERNES

The lips of friendship mellow.

The reader will now stand with me at the old gates of Preston Castle. At the south ern side of those broad meadows we can rebuild, in fancy, the quaint embattled residence. And we may see a tall thin, strange figure passing out into the usrrow lane, hedged with hawthorn and holly. It is · Yorick going back to The Hoo. Those sly, comic features which Lavater speaks of-the expressive features of "the arch, satirical Sterne "-wear a look of triumphant humour. He has just made a sketch of Captain Hinde, and feels that it will be his masterplece. The work will be true to nature, but he will finish it with the thousand graceful touches of his unique pencil, and give it the rich costume and colour of the bygone days of Marlborough. The bright eyes of Yorick's pule face grow brighter with the inspiration of genius, and he rides away in his gayest mood; certain to be more brilliant than ever at Lord Davie's -- Macmillan's Magazine.

THE BALLYVOURNEY REGATTA. (From "Sporting Rambles and Holiday Papers," by William Barry;)

The Protestants and the Catholics Ballyvourney were pretty equally divided; if anything, there was a preponderance of numbers towards the latter; but the former made up for this by better organisation and system. The first bone of contention at the regatta parliament would be the appointment of a man to discharge a cannon at the commencement of every race. The discharge of artillery was a feature of the Ballyvourney aquatics. A shot was fired at the start; another when the first boat came in, another for the second, and two when the pig was taken off the pole which hung over the water, with a union-jack waving about the grunting porker, in order to give a maritime kind of excuse of this apparently unregatta-like diversion. Now, there were two gunsmiths the gunpowder-sellers in Ballyrourney; one went to church, and the other went to mass; and the inhabitants bought whatever they wanted of Curtis and Harvey or Pigou (both "glazed and blasting") from their respective co-religionists, purveyors of explosive compounds and meerschaums. The Protestant gunsmith was ultimately appointed, and when the morning of the regatta dawned his platform over the sea-wall; and a lively place Ballyvourney was then! The Scullahoue lioys, from the Scullahone River, in flannel jackets, arrived to contend for the second pulling-race. Against them, and at mortal foud with them, the heroes of a neighbouring headland, called Drumvarrig, were to contend. It was necessary to have a boat full of policemen between these gentry until the word or signal was given for the start, and across the police-boat they kept up the most fearful war of words in Gaelic, with constant five pounds, and for this amount they were Protestant artilleryman stands to his gun, Current Rates. and off-it-goes with a tremendous report, leaving the ears deaf, and in the air the mos awful and depressing stench conceivable. With immonse difficulty a truce is established, and Scullahoue and Drumvarrig are brought back to the starting-rope, and again the artillerist of the Reformed persuasion fires bis

This time they are made to give each other a wide berth, and pull fairly enough until they reach the flag-boat. Here they are seen, by the aid of a glass, to have fouled again, and there is a general impression that Mickey Donovan, who is in the flag-boat, will be murdered between them. A magistrate and a priest pursue in the police-bout, and only arrive just in time to pick up the crew of the Drumvarrig craft, whose sides have been staved in by the Scullahonites. The latter, having their antagonists in the water, are trying to hit them on the head as they float about. A rescue is effected by the authorities. Meanwhile, Mickey Donovan who had been anchored in the flag-boat, has disappeared, and so has his boat.
